The Joseph Pulitzer World Room is located on the west side of the 3rd floor of Pulitzer Hall. With stunning views, natural light, and a beautiful stained glass window, this room is ideal for intimate lectures, meetings, receptions, and formal dinner dinners. The World Room was renovated in October 2014 and is unlike any other space on campus.

The famous stained glass window entitled “Liberty Lighting The World,” originally housed in the Joseph Pulitzer World Building, dates back to 1889. Columbia University purchased it from New York City for $1 in 1955, before the building was demolished.

In addition to the numerous events held in the World Room, The Pulitzer Prize winners are announced in this space each year.
